REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE MEETING.

There will be a meeting of the County Republican Central Committee on Tuesday, April 7, at 3 o'clock P. M., in the office of Green & Wood, Hartford Bank Building.

N. A. MORFORD, Chairman. L. J. WOOD, Secretary.

The Republican would like to have a good, live correspondent in every village and mining camp in Arizona.

PARSELL'S son is setting and his unholy intrigue with a married woman will effect his downfall, as it ought to do.

The Democratic free trade organs are not saying anything just now about the drop of two cents a pound on sugar, brought about by the McKinley bill.

Every member of the Republican County Central Committee should make it his duty to be present at the meeting of the committee next Tuesday afternoon.

Yesterday morning a four line "for rent" ad appeared in THE REPUBLICAN, advertising a house for rent, and before night it brought a tenant. Moral: Advertise in THE REPUBLICAN.

The Yuma Times says the Southern Pacific Railroad Company will furnish flat cars and a train crew to assist in building the levee to run from Prison Hill along the Gila to the mesa west of the old town.

In another column will be found a gossip letter from Tip Top. The Republican is always glad to publish news communications from every section of the Territory and would be especially pleased if his friends would send in all happenings of interest in their respective localities.

There having been some talk about electing the Hon. N. O. Murphy Mayor of Phoenix, that gentleman desires THE REPUBLICAN to state that under no circumstances could he accept the position. There is no question of Mr. Murphy's fitness for Mayor and his being universally popular in Phoenix, but his positive declination precludes any further consideration of his name.

With a Democratic majority made secure by frauds, outrage and assassination, it is not to be wondered at that the State of Arkansas, one of the richest in natural resources in the Union, is away behind her sister states of the West. Thursday her State Senate refused to pass a bill appropriating $30,000 for an exhibit at the World's Fair, and yet only a few days before the Legislature passed a law granting pensions to ex-Confederate soldiers and on the same day took down the picture of Washington in the Assembly chamber and replaced it with that of Jefferson Davis, Poor Arkansas! It will take many years of missionary work to place her in the rank in which she belongs.

The Territorial Board of Equalization is one of the most important boards of officers in the Territory. The late board consisted of Hon. Thomas Hughes, Territorial Auditor, Hon. W. C. Bashford, of Prescott, and Hon. A. J. Doran, of Florence. The commissions of both Bashford and Doran were "vacation" commissions, which expired at the end of the late Territorial Council. In addition to this a new judicial district has been created, so that it will now be necessary for the Governor to appoint three members. It would be hard work to find better men for this board than W. C. Bashford and A. J. Doran from their respective districts. The Republican hopes that they will be reappointed. The board by law meets on the first Monday in June.

HARRY JEFFORDS is dead; genial, warm-hearted and brilliant, his death will be a sorrow to all who knew him. To those who knew Harry Jeffords in health, his late years of suffering would of itself have occasioned great pain. He came to Arizona about 1884, believing that his clear, dry climate would give relief to his rheumatism, and for several years he did gain great relief, that might even have proved permanent had it not been that Bright's disease began to develop and has finally carried him off. In public life Mr. Jeffords has always maintained a high reputation for ability, attention to duty, and of the highest integrity. Of late his health has prevented his attention to his duties and this fact was a worry that undoubtedly hurried his end. THE REPUBLICAN extends its sympathy to his family and relatives.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

THE RIGHTS OF ALIENS.

When viewed in the light of reason Italy begins to see that her demands upon the United States regarding the men killed at New Orleans are unjust and not in accordance with international law, as at first claimed. In all her treaty obligations the United States guarantees the same protection of the laws to citizens of a foreign power that she gives to her own citizens, no more. In this case the murderers of Chief Hennessey, of whom it seems two were citizens of Italy, were killed by a mob. They were not slain by the United States or by any of its agents, but by private citizens. Let a crime be committed against any citizen of the United States and he has no redress against the National Government. He must resort to the civil courts provided by the State. There he can secure redress. Or it may be that justice miscarries, in which case he has no appeal, but must quietly submit, unless he takes the law in his own hands, for which he himself becomes amenable to the State.

It was because of the miscarriage of justice that the citizen—in this case an assemblage of citizens—took the law into his own hands at New Orleans. No one will presume to say that Italy would ever have said one word in protest had these assassins been found guilty and executed by the Sheriff. Even if she had the United States would have replied that she could only give these men such protection as she afforded to her own citizens, and the courts having found them guilty of crime the Federal Government could not interfere. Had they been executed by agents of the National Government then would Italy's demands have been in accordance with international law. As in the case of the seizure of Mason and Sillidell, England demanded their release, and the seizure having been made by a naval officer of the United States, this Government was directly responsible and so held. Should a citizen of the United States be murdered by Italian bandits this Government could not demand redress of the Italian Government. The punishment of the criminal would have to be performed by the peace officers where the murder occurred. But should a citizen of the United States be killed by a company of Italian soldiers, then very properly that Government would be held to answer for the acts of its agents.

The Constitution of the United States is not weak as the European press has tried to point out. It affords within the pale of law ample protection to all, but it cannot be stretched to supplant the civil government in time of peace, even though justice may have seemed to be lost.

For some unexplained reason the people of Arizona seem to have an insane desire to rush a man into the grave just as soon as he is dead, particularly if he appears to be homeless and friendless. A case of this kind occurred in Phoenix several months ago, when the G. A. R. disinterred a member of that order and gave him a Christian burial. In Mohave county a quick burial was recently made which leads the Miner to thus justly comment on it: A man named Mahony, who was brought over from Mineral Park a short time ago and placed in the county hospital, suffering with pneumonia, died Monday afternoon, and was buried a few hours thereafter. It does not seem right to sack a man under the sod before his heart grows cold and his limbs become rigid. Some regard should be shown these poor dead bodies before interment. Perhaps they have friends or relatives who, had they but known of their death, would have given them burial outside the porter's field. These men are worthy pioneers of civilization on the frontier of the great West. They have discovered new El Dorados; others have followed in their tracks to reap the harvest. They are worthy a better fate than to be hustled into their graves while they are yet warm.

We trust the newspapers over the Territory will take up this subject and bring about the much needed reform. A body could at least be held for twenty-four hours after life is extinct.

The Democratic organ, a day or two ago, was loud in its declarations about Maricopa county being accorded her just dues in the present apportionment for representatives, yet when Governor Irwin vetoed the infamous gerrymander bill of the Democrats and suggested the present apportionment, it called the veto message "an aggregation of buncombe" and pronounced that unjust bill the most fair measure that could be devised. Strange how both measures could be so exceedingly fair.

Some people seem unable to realize that the columns of a newspaper are of any value to the publisher and feel greatly offended because they are not given a fine write-up of their business every week or two. A newspaper's columns are the publisher's stock in trade, the same as a merchant's goods, and he can no more give them away and do a successful business than a merchant can give away hats or clothing from his shelves.

Some people have remarkably short memories. C. Meyer Zulick the apostle and patron saint of Maricopa county Democracy, when Governor of Arizona, appointed for his Attorney-General a man who at the time of his appointment was under indictment for assault to commit murder. Come again?

YOU WANT RAILROADS!

You also need a first-class Furniture Store. What class or line of trade reflects with as much credit to a community as a store of this kind? After due consideration and advice of some of our friends and customers, we have concluded to make a change in our program in the near future. Will the people of Phoenix and vicinity encourage us in our departure? If so, we will, in due time, place before you such a stock of Furniture, Carpets, Crockery and Wall-Paper that would be a credit to any city. We propose to eclipse all former efforts. In the meantime we intend to close out as much as possible of our old goods to make room for the largest stock in our line ever brought to this or any other Territory.
